Greene County Public Health Launches Podcast, “Public Health Matters”

GREENE COUNTY, OH – In late January, Greene County Public Health officials launched a new monthly podcast, called Public Health Matters.

Public Health Matters is dedicated to sharing information about health issues and topics that affect Greene County residents, their families, and their community in a fun and refreshing way. With a new release at the end of each month, Public Health Matters will cover topics such as Global Day of Unplugging, National Public Health Week, National Minority Health Month, food and swimming Safety, environmental health issues, and the no-cost health event of the summer, GuardCare.

Listeners can subscribe to Public Health Matters on Apple Podcasts or wherever you get your favorite podcasts. Take a listen and feel free to leave a review, suggest ideas for future episodes, and share it with others. Listen to it here, too: <https://gcph.simplecast.com/episodes/what-is-public-health>. A new episode will be released at the end of each month.

For questions about the podcast or episode suggestions, please email lfox@gcph.info.
